Ireland, Empire, and China

For our May 21st meeting pleased to welcome Barry Glucksman Ireland House speaking on a very original in the history of the IHRT: Sino-Irish interactions and the case for the Irish and their role in British empire building. We'll hear about the nature and significance of Chinese – Irish relations in the Pacific world since the late 18th century.

of the IHRT, we are McCarron from the NYU in NYC. He will be subject, never presented Barry McCarron received his PhD in history from Georgetown. He did a research fellowship at Melbourne and Oxford before coming to NYU as a Faculty Fellow. He has had a deep interest in Sino-Irish relationships in all their aspects. His major work has been The Global Irish and Chinese, their migrations, exclusions and foreign relations among empires. This was his dissertation, soon to become a finalized book. He won the 2016 World History Assoc. Dissertation Prize.
